ESCI: The Next Chapter

New Collaboration Brings New Sense of Innovation and Shared Vision

Chantilly, VA – As emergency service organizations emerge from the challenges faced since the advent of the worldwide Coronavirus pandemic, Emergency Services Consulting International (ESCI) – a subsidiary consulting firm of the International Association of Fire Chiefs (IAFC) – continues to innovate and expand to meet the needs of public safety organizations.

To support this effort, ESCI and the IAFC have further come together in an operational partnership by appointing IAFC CEO and Executive Director Rob Brown to also oversee ESCI as President and CEO of ESCI. This new collaboration brings a new sense of innovation and shared vision, as well as an expanded network of partners and cooperating agencies to guide public safety organizations into the future. “ESCI has been known as the go-to fire, rescue, and emergency medical services consulting firm for over two decades; Brown said, “Moving forward, ESCI is poised to become the one-stop-shop for all public safety consulting essentials, including law enforcement and emergency management/ homeland security.

To kick off this new effort, ESCI will be showcasing our new array of cutting-edge offerings, as well as our proven line of extraordinary products and services provided by our Human Capital and Planning and Strategic Services Divisions at Fire-Rescue International (FRI) in Charlotte, NC, (28-30 July). FRI attendees will have the opportunity to learn from ESCI executive staff during the FRI education sessions and engage with ESCI staff at the FRI IAFC Pavilion to discuss consulting needs or any of our products and services.

ESCI offers an unmatched cadre of consulting professionals and experienced subject matter experts that assure our local, state, national, and international clients receive cutting-edge, innovative, and sustainable counsel. ESCI staff are degreed professionals in their field, and our consultants are leaders who have served at all levels of operational, administrative, and executive management in both public and private organizations. ESCI's people and resources are of the highest caliber available, ensuring that your project is completed in a manner that guarantees your project is on time, on budget, and of the utmost quality.
